Report

A field study was conducted as prescribed in the 4th Sem (CBCS) syllabus (Paper BOT-HC-4036) from 06.03.2024 to 07.03.2024. The survey aimed to study the floristic composition and vegetation pattern of Cherrapunjii and its adjoining area. Cherrapunjii is located in the highest rainfall area of the world. Due to this reason hill tops are flat due to washing away of soils and totally barren. Vegetation are found only in the hill slopes and gully areas. Students were taught the reasons behind that due to heavy rainfall two way actions has been taken place (1) the reproductive propagules are washed away to the deep region and (2) no soil on the hill top due to washing and erosion. Heavy rainfall occurs due the entry of vapour loaded clouds from Bangladesh due to SW Monsoon and getting obstructed by Shillong hill clouds going up and cooled and precipitation occurs.

A Field Trip to Arwai Cave and LaitlumKrah

On 8th November 2023, 40 students from the 6th semester went on an exciting field trip to Arwah Cave and Laitlum Krah in Meghalaya. The purpose of this excursion was to help students learn more about fossils, paleontology, and the biodiversity of the region.

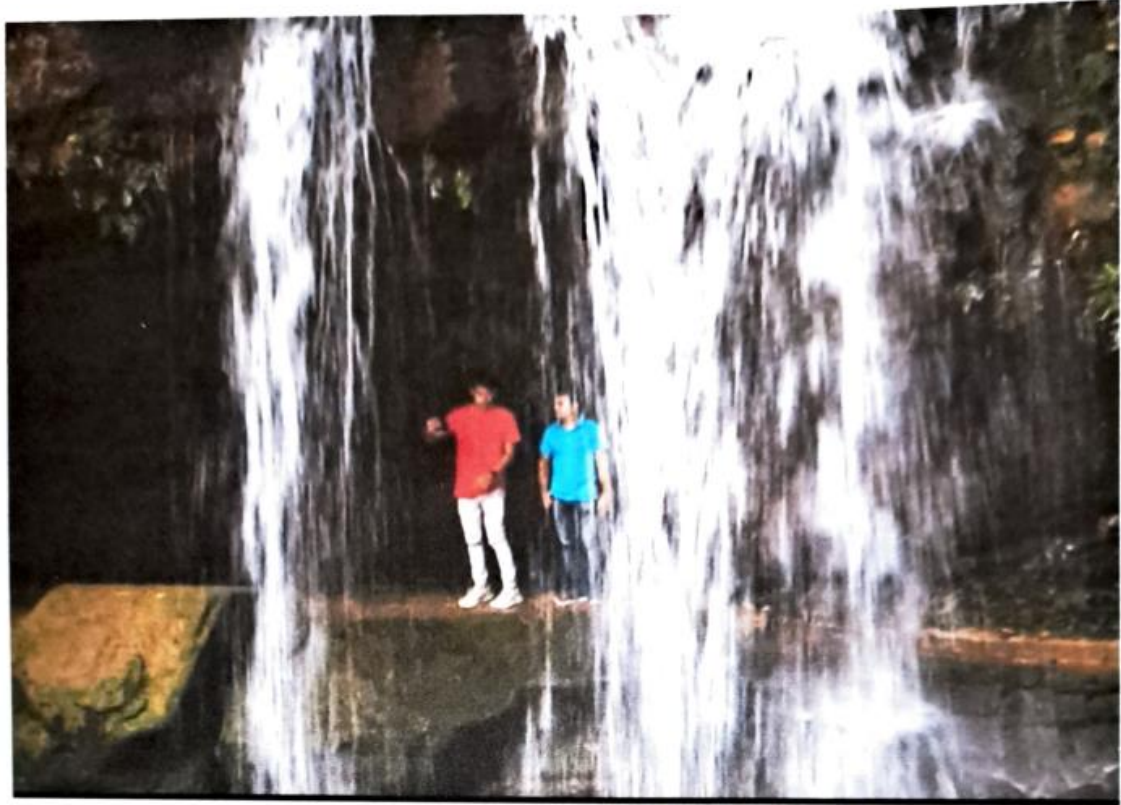

During the visit, the students explored the cave systems and observed the fascinating formations of stalactites and stalagmites, learning how these develop over time and deepening their understanding of geological processes. Inside the caves, they studied the paleontological evidence, discovering fossils of ancient animals that once inhabited the area, which provided insights into past ecosystems and biodiversity.

The scenic beauty of Laitlum Krah offered a chance for students to appreciate Meghalaya's stunning landscapes. They enjoyed breathtaking views while discussing the environmental challenges these areas face, which helped them realize the importance of conservation.

This visit enriched their knowledge of geology and biodiversity and fostered a sense of responsibility toward protecting natural resources. The experience inspired them to consider their role in conservation efforts and encouraged mindfulness of the environment. Overall, the trip to Arwah Cave and Laitlum Krah was an invaluable experience that combined education with adventure, leaving a lasting impact on the students.

A visit to ZSI, Shillong (17th May 2024, 4th Semester)

On 17th May 2024, 20 students from the 4th semester revisited the Zoological Survey of India (ZSI) in Shillong. This visit was part of an ongoing effort to help students learn about the latest research in zoology. With a smaller group, the students had more opportunities for in-depth interactions with the scientists and researchers at ZSI.

During the visit, the students gained valuable insights into how zoological studies are conducted. They learned about various field research techniques, species identification methods, and data analysis processes. This hands-on approach allowed them to understand the practical aspects of zoology more clearly.

The visit also highlighted the important role that zoologists play in studying animal behavior and maintaining ecological balance. The students learned about the significance of biodiversity conservation and how it impacts the environment and society. Understanding these concepts helped them appreciate the need for ongoing research and protection of wildlife.

This experience sparked further interest among students in pursuing research-oriented careers in zoology and conservation biology. They were inspired by the work being done at ZSI and motivated to explore the field further. Overall, the revisit to ZSI Shillong was an enriching experience that deepened students' understanding of zoological research and its importance in today's world.
